Ccl3 enhances docetaxel chemosensitivity in breast cancer by triggering proinflammatory macrophage polarization

Authors
Dandan Sheng, Wei Ma, Rui Zhang, Lei Zhou, Qiaodan Deng, Juchuanli Tu, Weilong Chen, Fuchuang Zhang, Naiyong Gao, Mengxue Dong, Dong Wang, Fengkai Li, Yin Liu, Xueyan He, Shengzhong Duan, Lixing Zhang, Tong Liu, Suling Liu

Correspondence
suling@fudan.edu.cn, liutong@hrbmu.edu.cn

In Brief
CC motif chemokine ligand 3 (Ccl3) induced by docetaxel (DTX) triggers proinflammatory macrophage polarization and subsequently facilitates phagocytosis of cancer cells. Ccl3 induction in combination with DTX may provide a promising therapeutic strategy to overcome chemoresistance and achieve better clinical outcomes in patients with breast cancer.